by Cuticura Remedies.

I was covered with scrottin sores from my head to my waist, suffering so that I could not sieep nights, and could lie down only with pillows under my arros. My head was so sore that I could not wear a hait; and being a farmer, I could not go bareheaded, so wore a very soft handkerchief on my head. In fact, I was a discussing slight to others and to my self. After doctoring for six years with the best physicians in the country, and getting worse all the time. I had given up all hope of getting well when I saw your CUTICURA REMEDIES advertised and procured a set, although with little faith in them. The first set, however, did me such a vast amount of good, that I continued their use, and now, after using four sets, I am happy to say that I am entirely cured. Any of the prominent business men and farmers in and around Plainteld will indorse my story. GEORGE A. HEINSELMAN, Plainfield, III.

Nice Country Recipes.

A country housewife says; I know of nothing so delicious in hot weather as hung buttermilk. Fill a jelly bag or cloth (which is quite free from holes) with buttermilk (which is better if it has been churned two or three days), let it hang all night, when the water will have strained out. Turn the cord that remains into a bowl, and mix by degrees as much sweet milk or cream as will make it the consistency of thick cream, blending it well to re-move all lumps. When it is quite smooth sweeten to taste, and add the juice of any preserve to flavor it. Whisk for five or six minutes and pour it into a glass dish. Another way is to hang the battermilk all night, as before, then blend the curvis very smoothly with thick cream and sweeten Dissolve in milk one-quarter ounce of isingless which has been melted over the fire, stir this into the cream, and whick for a few minutes, then pour the mixture into a mold. When stiff turn it out and serve.

Pretty Summer Counterpanes, Etc.

Very pretty counterpanes or bed covers or summer are made of broad, coarse lines strips, with guipure insertion, either straight down or slanting across the bed. Embroidered tea clocks in that thrend of various tints are much fancied. For these a hemstitched torder is generally preferred to one of fringe or lace. THE CURIOSITY SHOP.

A Collection of Fugitive Facts and Out-of-the-Ordinary Information. Few ceremonial customs have originated in recent times, avers Garrick Mallery, who expresses himself as follows in a recent is-sue of The American Anthropologist: Their forms, whether now crivial or still impor-tant in sociology, are vestiges of the past, and only by anthropologic studies are traceable to their genesis and early form. All authorities, unswayed by a religious of theorizing bins, agree that in the origin of these ceremonies there was nothing de signed or intentional; that is, they were not directly invented wish definite purposis. A thing is not now and never has been customarily done because it is intrinsically right, but is considered to be right after and because it has been habitually done, whatever its origin or the circum stances in which it prevailed. The rules of courteous behavior as they now exist are not the immediate effect of deliberate conventions, but are the natu-ral and slow product of the forces gradually developing social life, and they exhibit the laws of evolution with as great distinctuess as is demonstrated in the physical realm. Men have not inbricated, though they have framed rules for themselves. They have fellen into the customs from which rules were framed, and then by unintended modifications have deviated into novelty and new rules.

Peter the Great and Ris Dwarfs. Formerly it was the custom of the great to maintain dwarfs in their retinue, and in the middle ages there were few royal courts without one, and there are some instances of these little people rising to dis-tinction. Peter the Great, czar of Russia, who was himself between 6 and 7 feet high, was very fond of dwarfs. When he went on his travels he had in his retinue four dwarfs. The most calebrated of Czar Peter's dwarfs was a little lady whom he called Poupee. When fully grown to wo-manhood she was only as tall as a child of

5 or 6 years of age. She was very pretty and extremely clever, and the gigantic exar took the greatest delight in her company, and was never thed of amusing himself with the lively little creature. Dwarfs seldom live to a great age, but this tiny mite outlived her friend the exar and all the members of his court, and reached the age of 100 years. She had never suffered from any illness, and preserved all her faculties to the close of her

Hari-karl, or the Bappy Dispatch. Hari-kari, or the happy dispatch, was a Japanese method of execution. When an official of renk was condemned to death a sword was sent to him; he took leave of his family, po formed certain religious rites and then plunged the sword into his bowels, drawing it down and across. If a gentleman had been insulted he would commit hari-kari on the doorstep of his enemy, who by the Japanese code of honor was compelled to do the same. Only old fashioned persons perform the happy dis-patch nowadays in Japan; it has been shelved along with many other good old customs of that lovely empire, says The

Dr. Brown-Sequard Distanced. The medical press is now announcing the alleged discovery by Dr. Malin-Conico, of Naples, of the "microbe of old age." The public is informed through Italian jour-nals that the microbe of old age exists and is transmitted by heredity; invades with age the entire human organism, which it ravages and destroys, leading to caducity and finally to death. It is to be hoped that Dr. Malin-Conico's "discoveries" will not end here, but that having found the subtle enemy he will next announce a success-"I don't know, but—see these towels for ful means of combating it, and provide fifteen cents. The royal insignia of France, the fleurde-lis, is generally supposed to have originally represented the lily. Authority on the legends and listory of plants says: "In France the fleur-de-lis is so named by a corruption of fleur-de-Louis; it does not represent, as is generally supposed, the flower of a lily, but an iris, which was the emblem adopted by Louis VII on leaving for the Crusades, and was worn by the successors of that monarch."
